The Charleston Convention. We know that the Democracy of Tennessee are awaiting the action of the Charleston Convention, with the ardent hope that the representatives of the emocracy of the nation will select as their standard bearer in the approaching struggle, Tennessee's favorito-Aronew Joneson. We have been repeatedly asked, "can be be unminated?" We not only believe that he can, but by proper discretion on the part of our delegates he will be mominated. We are satisfied that this result can be effected without management or manusuvering by

His strength with the people, his Railroad drivers (city) 7 days per week... availability, is not questioned by the well informed Stage drivers. supporters of any of the other aspirants. All admit that if he should be nominated, his election will be sure. What is now seeming weakaces will in the end prove his strength. When those delegates whose excited personal prejudices have blinded their judgments as to the fit man, shall have become satisfied that their favorite cannot be successful, they will at once begin to cast about for one whose political and personal integrity is above suspicion, and who wille he can carry all the Southern States, can also carry all the doubtful Northern States. That man we believe to be Governor Jouxson, and we believe the Convention will finally so determine. Mr. Donalas will undoubtedly go into the Convenacceptable, the South has not the confidence in his availability, which his Northern admirers seem to pessess. His success in some two or three of the Southern States we should regard as somewhat doubtful. With the positive opposition which there is to him inside of the Democratic party in the closely contested free States, we know of none upon which he could certainly rely except California and Oregon. Even in Illinois the popular vote was against film when he was elected United States Senater. The late election in the city of his residence, Chicago, would seem to indicate that Black Republicanism is decidedly on the increase in that State. The Democratic Senators from Indiana, Mesers. BRIGHT and Fires, are bitterly opposed to him, and should be be the candidate, the consequent luke warraness of themselves and their friends would increase the probabilities of defeat in that State. He. could not expect to raily very warmly to his support a large number of the Democrats of Pennsylvania, since his warfare with the Administration Where then, could be expect to get a sufficient number of Northern States to secure his election" Island and Indiana. strive to prevent its being conferred upon any other Northern man, as that would diminish his chances for the position in 1864. So with each of the other aspirants from the free States. The Northern delegates having to look South for a candidate would certainly select some one whom they could support with the greatest hopes of success. That would not be Mr. Hexrun, because his reply to Mr. Doors Las on the invasion of the States was not acceptable to Mr. D's friends, and his opposition to the Homestead will make him generally unacceptable in the North. In looking over the list of Southerners whose names are mentioned in connection with the nomination, we believe that they will be constrain ed to select Gov. Jourson as the only one whose private and public history can give them entire assurance of auccess. His struggles with poverty in early life, when a tramping "jour" tailor, his gradual rise from the time that he learned from his wife the first rudiments of an English education until he has become the Senstor of a Sovereign State in the National Congress, having again and again served in the State Legislature, then for several years a Representative in Congress, then twice as Governor of the State and new as United States Senator, never having been defeated but once and that many years ago in one of his canvasses for the General Assembly of the State, his long and determined devotion to the people, his disregard of professed politicans and their schemes, his unflinehing will, his strict adherence to principle, and his unimpeachable integrity all point him out not only as the available candidate but as the fittest man to guide the Ship of State in this hour of peral. We believe that before a nomination is made the convention will reason about this matter and conclude about it as we have done. To secure this result we repeat what we have before said all that is necessary to be done is for our delegation to adhere closely to the recommendation of our State Convention. Even if they should, by possibility, be unsucconstal they will maintain the dignity of the State and of their own characters. The report is being sedulously circulated throughout the country that Tonnessee delegates do not intend to present the name of Gov. Jousson in earnest: that they will simply cast their votes for him on one or two ballot as a more matter of compliment. Such a report is unauthorised by the dylegation and unjust to them. The vaciliation of our delegates to Cincinnati and the fact that some two or three of our Democratic contemporaries have manifested an unwillingness to yield their personal prejudices to the expressed preference of the State Convention has tended to me part a shade of probability to such a rumor. We hope that the delegation will go to Charleston determined to let it be known, modestly but firmly, that the Democracy of Tennessee are for Gov. Jourson with all the arder of devoted hearts, and that they have gone to the Convention for the purpose of con- taxes taken during the campaign of last fall. tributing all in their power to his selection for the Presidency. Then we believe his nomination will be certain. We have talked to delegates from different Northern States who tell us that their States are ready to cast their votes in the Convention for the choice of Tennessee whenever they are assured our delegates are sincere and determined in their efforts to secure his nomination. Those who are familiar with the facts will re-
